Community engagement and partnership

Metro Blooms works in and with communities, providing resources for pollinator habitat, raingardens, and other sustainable outdoor practices.

We are comprised of Metro Blooms (the non-profit), Design+Build (a for-profit), and Blue Thumb (a public and private partnership).

We plant, teach, and learn about raingardens, native plants and healthy trees.

We all have a stake in working together to take climate action
and to address
environmental injustices.

Our work is based on the belief that
everyone has a right
to clean air, land and water.

We collaborate with individuals, community groups, local government, non-profits, business owners, artists, elders, renters, youth, and people most impacted by environmental injustices.

We value the wisdom of people of all ages and experiences.

Our Community Relations team practices equitable engagement centered in intentionality, community power, connection, and resource redistribution. We believe in restoring land and healing our relationships to nature and each other.

Our skilled designers with Design+Build
re-envision
outdoor spaces to meet community
needs.

A close-up photograph of several tall, purple-flowered plants with green leaves, likely a species of Verbena, set against a blurred background of more greenery.

Our awesome Design+Build crews install resilient landscapes and restore habitats, focusing on clean water strategies and native plants.

Our education team coordinates Blue Thumb partners to offer trainings and DIY resources on pollinator-friendly plantings and stormwater management practices for residents across Minnesota.
